ROBERT A. CARDELLO ARCHITECTS

The intent with this 14,000-square-foot Belle Haven house was to transform it into a classic Hamptons estate home, and this space—once a storage attic with little light—had the potential to be the best spot in the house with its panoramic views of the yard and shore. The client wanted to create a true adult retreat, with his office included, and this redesigned space delivers with a seating area anchored by a fireplace flanked by built-in bookshelves, a billiard table and a wet bar, all framed by amazing water views. High-gloss walls in the office really pop, and blue accents throughout tie the rooms together. As an added surprise, a guest suite is tucked behind the office, accessible via a hidden door in the built-in glass case for the pool cues, and the barreled ceiling and dormer detail provide beautiful solutions to a complicated roofline. —JJ
